

What to Do in New York City in September 2018

by ANDREA WHITTLE
August 30, 2018

Events and Festivals

New York Fashion Week: NYFW runs from September 6 through 14 at Spring Studios and an array of other venues around the city. Most shows are by invitation only, but you can expect plenty of top-notch people-watching and general street style madness just outside.

OktoberFest: For four weekends starting September 21, Oktoberfest takes over Pier 15 in South Street Seaport, with plenty of German beer, stein-holding contests, pretzels, bratwursts, and more.

The Vendy Awards: A delicious gathering of 25 street food vendors comes to Governors Island on September 22. Tickets include unlimited food and drink, and proceeds go toward the Street Vendor Project, a non-profit advocacy group.